Description

General

The K2259 Gradient System consists of switch-mode current generators (amplifiers) and an actively shielded gradient coil. The power capabilities of both these components have reached new levels unparalleled in industry until now.

Gradient Amplifier Specifications

The K2259 Gradient System is largely equivalent to the K2217 gradients of the existing MAGNETOM Symphony and Sonata systems. All components were redesigned to achieve even higher performance.

The performance values for the available gradient option is listed in the table below:
