Abstract. The authors present a new method for the estimation of the parameters of a linear model with errors following a first-order autoregressive process. The proposed estimator is based on the generalized likelihood ratio test statistic. It is shown that the proposed estimator has better properties than the maximum likelihood estimator and the ordinary least squares estimator. A simulation study is conducted to compare the performance of the proposed estimator with the maximum likelihood estimator and the ordinary least squares estimator. The results show that the proposed estimator performs well in terms of bias and mean square error.
